

Information About Your Request for an Accounting of Disclosures

What does the right to an accounting of disclosures mean?

You may ask for a list of the times over the past six years when we shared your protected health information (PHI) with another person or organization. This includes the times we share your PHI outside of our normal business practices and outside of disclosures allowed by law.

What do I need to understand to use this right?

The list will not include the times when such information:

- Was shared with you or your personal representative;
- Was shared with your authorization;
- Was shared for your treatment;
- Was shared to pay for your health care;
- Was shared for our health care operations;
- Was shared for national security or intelligence purposes;
- Was shared with correctional institutions or law enforcement; or
- Was shared as part of a limited data set for research or public health activities.

Community Health Plan of Washington will respond to this request within 60 days. If we cannot respond within 60 days, we will send you a written notice telling you why there is a delay and when we will act on your request.

How much will this cost me?

If you ask for a list more often than once every 12 months, we may charge you a fee for copying and mailing. When a fee applies, we will tell you how much it will be so that you can decide if you want to change or cancel your request.

How do I make a request?

Complete and print the attached form, then mail it to the address printed at the end of the form.

How will I know if my request is processed?

We will send a letter to the address you write on the form. The letter will tell you whether we approved or denied your request.

How can I get a full notice of my privacy rights?

A full notice of your privacy rights is posted to the Community HealthFirst web site at: <http://healthfirst.chpw.org/for-members/your-rights-and-privacy/>
